

Menu of Class Trainings Available From the Learning Success Center

The success of your students depends on many things. One of the critical variables is their learning skills. Successful students know how to:

- concentrate and remember
- manage time
- take effective notes
- read textbooks efficiently
- use appropriate software (and the internet)
- take tests successfully and master test anxiety
- participate in study groups
- control stress
- use their own learning style to advantage.

When you help your students learn even one of these core skills, you help them go a long way to succeeding in your class, persisting in school, and achieving their dreams.

The Learning Success Center offers trainings in each of these skills, available as Student Success Seminars (offered throughout the term) and also as in-class trainings, delivered on-demand in your classroom.

We can also tailor presentations to your class, combining several of the topics into one presentation or giving a short or long training on any one skill. We can also create presentations on other topics, as requested. For example, in the past, we have delivered custom trainings on essay writing skills, APA Style requirements, critical thinking skills, study skills for math, and how to get the most from a class literature discussion. If you can think of an academic skill you wish your students had better control over, give me a call. We look forward to serving you.

Lawrence Gilius, Learning Services Coordinator, Learning Success Center AC3300, above the library, Phone: (503) 491-7507. www.mhcc.edu/lsc

